

Appendix 1.

Questionnaire on micro-credentials

Dear students,

Here is a questionnaire about micro-credentials (M-Cs) – relevant, short, flexible learning experiences offered by education institutions, through which you can learn new skills, improve your existing skills or reskill yourself in a particular area. Micro-credentials are also a tool to increase the awareness about the importance of lifelong learning and a response to changing social and economic needs.

Please circle an answer or add a suggestion in item 5.

1. You are
 - a. a first-year student
 - b. a second-year student
 - c. a third-year student
 - d. postgraduate student
2. You
 - a. are familiar with the term M-C
 - b. are somewhat familiar with the term M-C
 - c. know very little about M-C
 - d. have no idea about the term M-C
3. Do you think micro-credentials are adding real value in terms of learners' efficiency, effectiveness and productivity?
 - a. I am sure they are
 - b. I believe they are
 - c. I am not sure about this
 - d. I think they do not add a lot of real value
 - e. they absolutely don't add any value whatsoever
4. Which of the following micro-credentials would you participate in if you had a chance
(multiple choices possible)
 - a. Time management skills
 - b. Negotiation skills
 - c. Public speaking skills
 - d. Basic coding skills
 - e. Leadership skills
 - f. Self-management skills
 - g. General computer skills
 - h. Teamwork skills
 - i. General communication skills
 - j. Self-motivation skills
 - k. Learning skills (learn-to-learn skills)
 - l. Decision-making skills

m. Advanced coding skills

5. Please think about two or three micro-credentials that you would add to the above list, because you think they are important for you

- a. _____
- b. _____
- c. _____

Thanks very much for your time and effort.